

Time Makes Wise

Words & Music: Inga Rumpf

Publisher: Capriccio

I watched the time since yesterday
Every moment presence passed away
Things are moving from here to there
The next second they could be out of here

Thoughts are thought and thrown away
Talks are talked and lost the other day

I watched the time to realize
If it stands still I think I will be wise

Like a fish in the sea I will dip to the ground
Like a bird I will listen to the heavenly sound

I don't care if moons are falling down
I won't share in wars that are going 'round
No matter if they say it's wrong or right
It won't reach me – I'm out of sight

And I'll go through the darkness of my own in flight
And I'll lay at the Saviours' shoulder for a while
